Message from Chief Executive Brian Helleland

Coming together to support one another has always been the hallmark of Providence St. Jude's extraordinary culture. Throughout the course of COVID, we've seen this come through even more. Caregivers left retirement to serve alongside their former colleagues. Physicians and caregivers from Providence St. Jude Heritage medical offices came to help in our COVID units. We had executive leaders clearing trash on the first floor, finance staff disinfecting chairs in the vaccine clinic and an overall "servant's heart" attitude demonstrated across our ministry.

The physical, mental and emotional toll of this time has been heavy on our caregivers, but the compassion, strength and resilience they continue to exhibit is beyond inspiring. As donors to our ministry, I hope you share in the same overwhelming pride that I have in our Providence St. Jude family. And I thank you for being here for us every step of the way.

With gratitude,

Brian Helleland
